NEW HOME of the Western Regional Office is this modern building near greater Los Angeles.

Cunningham Announces:

'Kresge is moving to Troy, Michigan. We regret the necessity of this move...but our assured future growth has forced us.'

A new Kresge administration building location in Troy, Mich., has been announced by Chairman and President Harry B. Cunningham. The company's new general offices will be located on a 30-acre site at the northwest corner of Big Beaver and Coolidge Roads near I-75, approximately 20 miles from downtown Detroit.

Mr. Cunningham told Detroit Office employees:

"As you know, the addition of a fifth floor to the Detroit Office and the splintering of our data processing and credit divisions offered temporary relief for our space problem, but assured future growth has forced us to find a more permanent solution through major expansion of our present building or acquiring enlarged headquarters elsewhere.

"Until recent months we were tentatively planning to remain at our present location in Detroit. However, after further study, including an inspection of the new J. C. Penney building in New York, it became apparent that it would be impractical either to enlarge our present structure or construct a new multiple-floor building in the inner city.

"Our exploration of outlying sites has been limited to parcels of at least 10 acres with accessibility from the expressway network and acceptable travel distances for the majority of our employees. While none of the available locations was found to be ideal from all standpoints, the Troy site most nearly met all of our requirements.

WRO Moves To New Site

Senior Vice President John B. Hollister announced the signing of a long-term lease for new office facilities for the Western Regional Office. The recent growth and the planned future expansion of this region, which covers 11 Western states, necessitates a move to larger quarters.

The new office is the administrative headquarters for 49 K marts and 19 Kresge stores plus all future stores to open in the region. The Western Region is under the direction of B. M. Foster, vice president.

The new offices are located on LaCienega Boulevard near Imperial Highway in Los Angeles, Calif. This site was chosen because it offers a central location for the operations of the region. It is near the greater Los Angeles area and affords easy access to Los Angeles International Airport.

The Kresge Company initially occupies 9,500 square feet of space with room for expansion. The two-story building will also house the Western offices of K mart Enterprises, Inc. and Holly Stores, Inc. Space is also being provided for a Western Region credit office.
